* Labor hours saved per month assumes a conservative average savings of 5 seconds per liner savings compared to tying knots in the liner to make it fit.

* It does not take into account or include other real savings like the time saved not having to clean up after a mess, or potential liner savings. Most users are able to reduce liner costs by up to 20% or more (by reducing the number of sizes they have to stock, and by eliminating the practice of overlining. This average is the result of industry related independent studies. Your results may vary.
